

كَلَامُ التَّارِيخِيَّةِ

Historical Kan Periodical

The First Arab Refereed Electronic Historical Periodical

First issue appeared in September 2008

Kan is sponsored by Junior Historian Series

ISSN: 2090 – 0449 Online

- History is the elixir of a nation's life; a people without history does not actually exist. It is the magical mirror where nations can see their past reflected, their present translated, and their future inspired. As such, it is crucial to pay attention to history, preserve it, and bequeath it to the future generations; history would then be the beacon that guides them in their present and future. Therefore, the idea arose to found an electronic historical periodical.
- Historical Kan is specialized in scientific and academic topics in the field of history that are of interest to professors, researchers, students of Arab universities and everyone interested in this field.

Point of Departure

- Providing professors and researchers with non-traditional historical topics, articles and studies.
- Publishing researches and studies addressing the Arab reader to introduce to him/her historical facts in a smooth easy style.
- Shedding light on historical topics scattered in the digital space and classifying them, in addition to tackling distinguished topics in print books and magazines to benefit the Internet users.
- Building a database of email addresses of professors, researchers, students, and those interested in history that helps establish a network of communications that would, in turn, allow disseminate cultural historical awareness.

Objective

- Kan exists to bring together people of all communities who have an interest in the past.
- Exploring documented historical issues and making them available in an attempt to protect history against any bias, false information, and inaccuracies of half-educated people.
- Our mission is to promote, develop and support the study and teaching of history at all levels: teacher, student, amateur and professional.
- In accordance with this mission, we publish a range of material for a wide variety of readers that encompass:
 - Historical studies and research.
 - Book reviews.
 - Thesis reviews.
 - Reports of seminars and conferences.

Mission

- The editorial board has the honor to invite all those interested in preserving the history of the Arab world to enrich “Kan” with their studies and articles.

Invitation

Historical Kan Periodical

DIGITAL FUTURE FOR HISTORICAL STUDIES

Correspondences

info@kanhistorique.org

Chief Editor

mr.ashraf.salih@gmail.com

www.kanhistorique.org